

Washington State Developmental Disabilities Council

Helping people with developmental disabilities build better lives

TOWN MEETING

DON'T MISS THIS CHANCE TO TALK ABOUT
THE ISSUES
THAT ARE IMPORTANT TO YOU

Are you:

- A person with developmental disabilities?
- A family member of a person with developmental disabilities?
- A service provider for a person with developmental disabilities?
- A person interested in learning more about issues of concern for individuals with developmental disabilities?

Do you:

- Have concerns about an issue (or issues) facing individuals with developmental disabilities and their families today?
- Want to become more informed and involved in these issues?

If you do, please come to a town meeting sponsored by the Washington State Developmental Disabilities Council. At this meeting, you'll:

- Have the opportunity to share your concerns and identify systemic changes you'd like to see
- Learn how you can become more involved in DD issues at the local, state and national level
- Learn more about the Washington State Developmental Disabilities Council

About the DD Council

The Washington State Developmental Disabilities Council is a governor-appointed council. The Council works to promote the independence, productivity, and integration/inclusion of people with developmental disabilities (DD) into the community. The Council works toward this by:

- Promoting systems change in both the DD & other "generic" systems
- Increasing DD system capacity
- Encouraging DD advocacy activities
